the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased in the UK (Mental Health Act 1983, 1990).

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with mental health problems. The UK Government has set out a strategy for mental health care in the 1990s (Department of Health 1990). The strategy is based on the following principles: (1) the promotion of mental health and the prevention of mental illness; (2) the early identification and treatment of mental illness; (3) the provision of a range of services to meet the needs of people with mental health problems; (4) the promotion of the rights and interests of people with mental health problems; (5) the promotion of the recovery of people with mental health problems.
