1. Introduction

The purpose of this study is to investigate the effects of a new educational program on student learning outcomes. The program, which was implemented in the 2019-2020 academic year, focuses on enhancing critical thinking and problem-solving skills through a series of interactive activities and projects. The study aims to determine whether the program has led to significant improvements in students' performance on standardized tests and their ability to apply knowledge in real-world contexts. The research is structured as follows: first, a literature review is conducted to establish the theoretical foundation and identify gaps in the existing research. Next, the methodology section details the research design, including the selection of participants, the intervention, and the data collection methods. The results section presents the findings of the study, and the discussion section interprets these findings in the context of educational theory and practice. Finally, the conclusion summarizes the key findings and offers recommendations for future research and program implementation.
