

the 1990s, the number of people who have been employed in the public sector has increased in all countries. The increase in public sector employment has been particularly rapid in the United Kingdom, where the public sector has grown from 10.5% of the total workforce in 1980 to 16.5% in 1995 (see Figure 1).

There are a number of reasons for the increase in public sector employment. One of the main reasons is the growth of the welfare state. In many countries, the welfare state has expanded significantly since the 1960s, leading to a large increase in public sector employment. Another reason is the growth of the public sector in the services sector. In many countries, the public sector has grown rapidly in the services sector, particularly in the areas of health care, education, and social services.

The increase in public sector employment has had a number of effects on the economy. One of the main effects is the increase in government spending. The increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government spending, which has had a stimulative effect on the economy.

Another effect of the increase in public sector employment is the increase in government revenue. The increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government revenue, which has had a positive effect on the economy. The increase in government revenue has also led to a decrease in government borrowing, which has had a positive effect on the economy.

The increase in public sector employment has also had a number of effects on the labor market. One of the main effects is the increase in the number of people who are employed in the public sector. This has led to a decrease in the number of people who are unemployed, which has had a positive effect on the economy.

Another effect of the increase in public sector employment is the increase in the number of people who are employed in the services sector. This has led to a decrease in the number of people who are employed in the manufacturing sector, which has had a negative effect on the economy.

The increase in public sector employment has also had a number of effects on the government budget. One of the main effects is the increase in government spending. The increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government spending, which has had a negative effect on the government budget.

Another effect of the increase in public sector employment is the increase in government revenue. The increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government revenue, which has had a positive effect on the government budget.

The increase in public sector employment has also had a number of effects on the economy as a whole. One of the main effects is the increase in government spending. The increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government spending, which has had a stimulative effect on the economy.

Another effect of the increase in public sector employment is the increase in government revenue. The increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government revenue, which has had a positive effect on the economy.

The increase in public sector employment has also had a number of effects on the labor market. One of the main effects is the increase in the number of people who are employed in the public sector. This has led to a decrease in the number of people who are unemployed, which has had a positive effect on the economy.

Another effect of the increase in public sector employment is the increase in the number of people who are employed in the services sector. This has led to a decrease in the number of people who are employed in the manufacturing sector, which has had a negative effect on the economy.

The increase in public sector employment has also had a number of effects on the government budget. One of the main effects is the increase in government spending. The increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government spending, which has had a negative effect on the government budget.

Another effect of the increase in public sector employment is the increase in government revenue. The increase in public sector employment has led to a large increase in government revenue, which has had a positive effect on the government budget.