the 1990s, the number of people who have been employed in the public sector has increased in all countries. The increase has been particularly large in the United States, where the public sector has grown from 10.5% of the total workforce in 1970 to 17.5% in 1995.

The increase in the public sector has been driven by a number of factors. One major factor is the growth of the welfare state. In many countries, the welfare state has expanded significantly since the 1970s, leading to a large increase in the number of public employees. Another factor is the growth of the public sector in the service economy. As the service economy has grown, the public sector has also grown, particularly in the areas of education, health care, and social services.

The increase in the public sector has also been driven by the growth of the public sector in the manufacturing sector. In many countries, the public sector has grown significantly in the manufacturing sector, particularly in the areas of infrastructure, transportation, and energy. This growth has been driven by the need for public investment in infrastructure and the growth of the public sector in the manufacturing sector.
